

A SUCCESSFUL TEST.

Sending Dispatches from a Train Moving Thirty Miles an Hour.

NEW YORK, April 20.—In a corner of the baggage car on the Port Morris branch of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, telegraph operators stood beside his key sending messages, and from the train sounded him receiving them. Passengers on the train watched and wondered for the train was rushing along at the rate of thirty miles per hour and it was manifest that the operator was talking to the rest of the world. Several of the passengers wrote out dispatches and enjoyed the novelty of having them sent from the flying train. An American Press reporter, who had left a message with the starter at Port Morris, found it had overtaken him. The invention which is on trial has been given a test of months on this short branch line, and has worked to the entire satisfaction of its inventors and negotiations are now about closed which will put it on several of the large through lines.

The invention is a very simple one. On the car itself are iron tubes running along the bottom of the car, carrying a coiled copper wire, which makes a complete circuit of the car length by being carried along the in-the car caught by being carried along the interior of the car. Unless attention was specially directed to it, it would be overlooked. The ends of the copper wire run to the operator's desk, where is the usual recorder, lamp and switch, or if it is desired to use the more modern and more economical "buzzer," there is a telephone connection. In this last the operator, in place of the rattling click of the sounder, has only the soft whistling throbbing which comes from the ordinary telephone ear-piece. There is no connection between the electrical plant on the car and any outside plant, but along the center of the tracks, covered up securely in a long bit of scantling, is an insulated copper wire. This is nothing more than one of the thick copper wires, familiar to all, as the light wires in the streets.

ter of the wooden strip, and a small gang of men might have laid down this at the rate of two miles per day. Into this wire from the regular offices on the ends of the line, or at any point, the message is sent in the or-by the wire of the iron tube below the car and thus reaches the operator's buzzer in the car. It matters not whether the car is standing on the track or moving at the high standing on the track or moving at the highest rate of speed, the induction goes on and the communication is continuous. On the branch in question, where the track wire is laid only on the outgoing track, there is no difficulty in getting messages through with the train on the other track, though in this case the distance between the wires is about eleven feet. Over a short culvert the track wire is carried in a cable on the bottom of

The induction is so strong and the system so perfect that when the train left the branch track where the ground wire was and went upon the main track this buzzer still kept up its story from the outside world, and not until the car had left the lower wire, fully a quarter of a mile away did the sound die out. This was explained by the operator by saying that the ground wire was using the air line fully twenty-five feet away to carry on the conversation. The application of the invention is first to the running of trunks for by its division, superintendent in contact and uninterrupted communication with every train at rest or in motion and whether fogs obscure the signals or no, whether it be night or day, every train runs under the direct orders of one man. Passengers may make use of the instrument for personal business and send dispatches from the train in motion and receive answers from the same channel. A stock ticker could be placed in a car and on a long transcontinent run speculation be kept up from the start to the finish.

Counterfeiting a Valuable Article.
The publisher of the Madison County Record writes from Huntsville, Ark., as to the effect of Brown's Iron Bitters on his wife. Mr. Daugherty says: "My wife has been using the bitters for some months, the effect in her case is remarkable." He also writes that owing to counterfeits and imitations, it was difficult to get the genuine article. That difficulty has now been remedied; imitators have been exposed and put to flight. There, as elsewhere, Brown's Iron Bitters can be had of all the respectable druggists at a dollar a bottle.

The Cincinnati Enquirer contains the following: A call is made on the heirs of Judas Levi, formerly market master of Mayville, Ky., to meet at Captain B. C. Levi's office, No. 174 Fourth street, Louisville, Ky., on the 30th instant, for the purpose of taking steps for the collection of an immense estate of $50,000, said to be held for them in England. The sons and daughters of Rowell Grant, who are cousins of General Grant, and John L. Scott, lawyer at Frankfort, Ky., and all the other grandchildren of Judas Levi are said to be the heirs. As there is some Grant blood interested in the claim, and Major Sartoris, son-in-law of General Grant, resides in London, it is likely that this claim will not be lost for want of influential attention.

The following notice concerning a gentleman who formerly lived in this neighborhood is taken from the Lafayette (Mo.) Democrat: Judge Harrison has appointed Mr. John G. Worthington, of Mayville, Deputy Collector. We doubt whether a more suitable appointment could have been made. Mr. Worthington is highly esteemed wherever known. He will bring to the discharge of the duties of the office a cultivated mind, unwavering integrity, an even temper and a kind and accommodating disposition. We congratulate Mr. Harrison in securing the services of so trustworthy and efficient a deputy.

Mr. Abraham Krutz, the man referred to by the Cincinnati Enquirer as having introduced Mrs. Eng to Mr. Fred. Hatze, says that it is untrue that he knew anything reflecting on the character of Mrs. Eng, although he had been acquainted with her for a long time, or that he had any knowledge that she was the intention of Mrs. Eng to "make a play" for Mr. Hatze's money, as stated by the Enquirer. Mr. Krutz is a respectable citizen of Chester and stands well with all the people who know him, and is considered incapable of such conduct as is attributed to him by the Enquirer.

Mr. Hanson was elected to sign the Constitution because Garrett Davis, who had been a member from Bourbon, refused to give his approval to the document by resigning his seat. In the convention after the people had ratified the Constitution, Governor Meriwether helped to correct the list. Both he and General Desha signed the Constitution. Mr. Hanson, among the living, but Judge John F. Rogers, now of Chicago, to whom we sent a proof slip, replied: "I was not the member. It was my cousin, and he is dead."

THE ST. LOUIS MYSTERY.

DETECTIVES AND REPORTERS FORMULATE A NEW THEORY.

The Body Found in a Southern Hotel Now Said not to be Praeler's—Statute in a Huge Conspiracy—the Theory Supported by Circumstances.

St. Louis, April 29.—The Southern hotel mystery is, if anything, increasing in density. Some of the detectives and many of the newspaper men, who have followed the case have formulated the theory that it is a huge conspiracy and that the body in the morgue is not Praeler's, but some other body fixed up for the occasion. It has never been positively identified. In fact it can not be because so badly decomposed. The corner, after the first examination, said the body had been dead at least two weeks, and this would corroborate the belief that it was brought from Boston.

To support the conspiracy theory it is intimated that Praeler may have been short several thousand dollars in his accounts, and being a sensitive, religious man, laid the matter before Maxwell and a scheme was formulated. Dispatches from Boston show that Maxwell was looking for a corpse there. His trail is strewn with clues which seem purposely left, and even the trunk containing the body has his initials on it.

Praeler disappeared the day before Maxwell and no effort has been made to trace him. The police hold to the theory that Maxwell was a crank and that account for his lack of caution and cunning. The whole city is in an uproar over the case, and hardly two men agree as to motive and fact. The partial mutilation of the corpse is not accounted for. The head could have been severed from the body and taken off in a grip-sack, thus betraying all identity, but it wasn't.

A dispatch from Fricco says Capt. Robinson of Boston, is on the Sydney with Maxwell. One of Praeler's trunks has been found in the harbor. It is not expected that anything new will be developed. The police are overwhelmed with clues from all over the United States.

AN OLD CRIME RECALLED.

The Similarity Between the Colt-Adams and the Maxwell-Praeler Murders.

New York, April 30.—The assassination of C. A. Praeler of St. Louis recalls to the recollection of old New Yorkers the Colt-Adams tragedy, than which no murder ever caused more excitement in this city. The profusion of the parties involved and the sensational nature of the details of the crime made it a subject for discussion for many years after it happened, for in those days—some forty years or more ago—New York was much smaller than at present, and such episodes made a more lasting impression than they do now. Ask some men who can remember that far back and you will find that about half of them believe the murderer escaped, the others will assert that he committed suicide. Colt was a brother of the man who became famous through his revolver. Adams was a prominent merchant. The crime was committed in Colt's room, corner of Broadway and Chambers street. The merchant had gone up to try to collect a bill. A dispute arose and Colt brained him and battered up the body fearfully. He tried to hide the crime by placing the body in a trunk and sending it aboard a vessel bound for the south. The ship was detained several days longer than was expected, and the body began to decompose. The trunk was burst open and the ghastly discovery of its contents was made. Colt was arrested and hatches of blood were found on the wall and floor of his room, which he had vainly tried to hide by smearing ink over them. He was tried and condemned and when the morning of his execution came Dr. Wainwright, who subsequently became bishop, entered his cell in the Tombs and was shocked to discover a dead body lying on the cot. That morning the dome of the Tombs caught fire and during the incident excitement, it is alleged that a man looking like Colt was seen to emerge from the prison, dressed like a fireman, and enter a cab, which was hurriedly driven away. Many people thought that Colt's brother had smuggled the body of an unknown suicide into the prison to make people believe it to be the murderer, and this story received a wide credit, as did subsequently the theory of Miss Raskell's escape by a similar ruse.

Where Jay Gould's Hand is Seen.

New York, April 30.—The executive committee of the Union Pacific met in Boston and gave formal assent to the proposition of the Pacific Mail company regarding an adjustment of the differences between the Union Pacific, Central Pacific and Pacific Mail. One of the conditions of the proposition is that the steamers of the Occidental and Oriental line be withdrawn and that a ten years' moratorium be given by the Union and Central Pacific that the Pacific Mail have no trans-Pacific opposition from them. The Union Pacific has no proprietary interest in the Occidental and Oriental, but Huntington and his friends have. Mr. Huntington said: "The Central Pacific has not considered the proposition. I think some arrangement will be made. I am not, however, prepared to say that the business of the Occidental and Oriental will be abandoned."

Marriage Didn't Save Him.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Albert Scott, a young man of high social connections in New York came here a year ago with $100,000. He became attached to Annette Bassette, and the pair went to Europe. They returned a few months since with a depleted exchequer, which Scott replenished through the circulation of bogus checks. Meanwhile a deceased aunt had willed him $5,000 to be given to him when he married. Being arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses, and having no funds with which to retain a lawyer, he married Annette, that he might secure his legacy and make a defense. He was, however, convicted and sentenced to nine months' imprisonment, besides being commanded to make full restitution of all the moneys he had secured from his victim.

ST. LOUIS, April 30.—By order of the United States circuit court the Havana division of the Wabash railroad was ordered to be transferred by receivers to Messrs. Spaulding and Terry trustees, under a mortgage to secure the issue of $1,300,000 bonds on which default of interest has been made. Authority was given to the trustees to foreclose and sell under the instructions of the United States circuit court for the southern district of Illinois.
